Irregular adjectives and adverbs list pdf

In most cases, to create an adverb we simply add –ly to the adjective: Quick becomes quickly, slow becomes slowly, etc. Some adverbs are irregular, however. Here's a list of common irregular adverbs in English: Most adverbs are formed by adding -ly to an adjective (e.g. slow ⇒ slowly). Here is a list of irregular adverbs, i.e. adverbs which do not follow the normal rule. Adjective Adverb good well fast fast hard hard late late early early daily daily straight straight wrong wrong, wrongly Here are some example sentences: He drives too fast. too fastly He speaks good English. / He speaks English well. My mother always worked hard. always worked hardly They arrived late for the party. arrived lately Intermediate exercise: regular and irregular adverbs Adjective – a word used to modify or describe a noun or pronoun. Adverb – a word that is used to modify an adjective, verb, or adverb. There are three forms of adjectives and adverbs used to show varying degrees of comparison: the positive, the comparative, and the superlative. The positive form is used when there is no direct comparison being made to anything specific, but is used to offer a broad or general comparison. The comparative form is used when two things are being compared with each other. The superlative form is used when more than two things are being compared with one another. Regular forms for one and two syllable words. positive – no change (big, strong, long, etc.) comparative – words end in "er" (bigger, stronger, longer, etc.) superlative – words end in "est" (biggest, strongest, longest, etc.) Regular forms for three or more syllable words. positive – no change (understandable, comfortable, etc.) comparative – use "more" (more understandable, more comfortable, etc.) superlative – use "most" (most understandable, most comfortable, etc.) Adverbs that end in "ly" always use "more" or "most", such as "more quickly" or "most quickly". Remember that these are general rules and many adjectives and adverbs have irregular forms. Have a go and see how you do!
